"We are inclined to think that Mr. Means will rank primus inter pares among those who have most perfectly preserved in literature memorials of a swiftly vanishing life. He has given us its humor, its pathos, and its inimitable picturesqueness, without caricature and without malice and he has so admirably balanced matter and manner that the reader never thinks that he is telling the story for the sake of the dialect or that he is using the dialect for the sake of the story. The dialect would be perfect if there were no stories at all, and the Stories would be irresistibly entertaining if there were no dialect at all."

OWEN JOHNSON

Has depicted a changing American Society in his new novel:

VIRTUOUS WIVES

It has not entirely changed as yet, but already we are seeing its healthful and invigorating effects of a great soul-test of war.

No book of fiction better forecasts the revolution in the status of woman than this new story by Mr. Johnson. We see the beautiful young heroine Amy Forrester, going her own free way in search of her trinity of ideals; pleasure, excitement and amusement, to the exclusion of all else; until the shock of tragedy opens her eyes to her real status and that of the future in her set.

VIRTUOUS WIVES is a clean, stimulating story of married life in New York that every woman will wish to read. Its title piques curiosity, but it is a moral tale and leaves a good taste.

We believe that VIRTUOUS WIVES will be the big Society novel of the year.

A Chance to Make Yourself "Solid"

DEAR MR. BOOKSELLER:

The Solid Book that Makes you "Solid"

Here is a tip! Nearly every bookseller has one or more "very special" customers—those who buy heaps of books in the course of the year. In some cases the "special" is a librarian, in others a school principal; frequently it is a private buyer whose thirst for books seems never to be quenched, so to speak.

To make yourself "solid" with these good people why not send them a copy of this year's TRADE LIST ANNUAL with your compliments? It would certainly provide them with material enough in the way of book catalogues! It would, best of all, be a graceful recognition of their trade and would be graciously accepted in the same spirit.

A dozen or more of the wise ones in the business every year order extra copies for this purpose.

And as each copy costs but $2.50, how could you possibly flatter a good customer so handsomely at less expense?

Think this suggestion over and be sure to send your order in before August 31st.

Yours for service,

VETOING INTERNATIONAL PUBLICATION

IF it is wise to check book importation to the extreme of demoralizing and breaking up the publication of books of English origin, the trend of the customs administration is effective indeed toward this end. But, if book publication and the distribution of literature ought to be encouraged, certain present tendencies must be promptly estopped. As we have many times pointed out, the Underwood Tariff Act, intended to decrease duties, has been recently so administered by local appraisers as to increase duties and would thus prohibit many forms of international publishing enterprise. This will result not in increased revenues, but in actually decreasing revenue by reducing the business on which revenue collection must depend. For instance, joint American and English publication, which has made possible many important enterprises of publishing value, would be made practically impossible if recent practices of appraisal should not be modified.

There is indeed grave and growing menace to the publishing trade concerned with importations in this increasing tendency of local appraisers indirectly to increase duties instead of keeping them at the lowered rates specified in the Underwood Tariff. It is the natural trend of appraisers as government officials, however fair and honest their intentions, to favor the government as far as possible for the increase in revenue which they help collect, and even to go so far as to penalize innocent importers. Of course appraisers must act within the law, for no executive or administrative official from the President and Secretary of the Treasury down can do otherwise than enforce the law as Congress wrote it into the statutes, and even the judiciary must construe the law within its phraseology except where the Supreme Court, as the only overruling authority, declares it unconstitutional. In other words, equity cannot be applied to over-ruling a law tho it may be and should be applied in the construction of the law. We submit that a careful study of the Underwood Tariff Law suggests confirmation of the view which we have from time to time presented, and that the extreme rulings of the appraisers at New York are no more necessitated by the phraseology of the law than they are justified by equity within or without the law, and that the contrary view is too rigid and narrow a construction of certain paragraphs individually, without considering their relation with each other and the spirit as well as the letter of the act.

The Underwood Tariff Act, approved October 3, 1913, is entitled primarily "An Act to reduce Tariff Duties." In construing its provisions, therefore, the spirit of this title should be kept in mind. Section 3, subsection D, requires an affidavit before the consul at the place of exportation giving "If the merchandise was obtained by purchase or agreement to purchase, a full and true statement of . . . the actual cost thereof or price agreed upon . . . and when obtained in any other manner than by purchase or agreement of purchase, the actual market or wholesale price . . . the price at which such merchandise is freely offered for sale to all purchasers in said markets, and that it is the price which the manufacturer or owner making the declaration would have received and was willing to receive for such merchandise sold in the ordinary course of trade in the usual wholesale quantities." It will be observed that these two provisions are not augmentative but alternative, that it is the actual price which the consignor is required to swear to. Section 3, K, requires the appraiser "to ascertain, estimate and appraise (any invoice or affidavit thereto of statement or cost, or of cost of production to the contrary notwithstanding) the actual market value and wholesale price of the merchandise." This requirement, construed with the provision previously quoted, evidently means a verification of the consignor's statement by appraisal of market value independently of the price paid but does not mean that the actual cost or price paid is not to be accepted as the declarable value. Otherwise the affidavit of price paid is useless and fatuous and the paragraphs are self-contradictory. The provision is really intended to prevent what is known as "dumping," i.e. the sale for exportation of surplus products at a price below market value or manufacturing cost, and it is with the latter in view that the act also assumes inquisitorial powers in export countries as to questions of cost, which is so seriously and justly resented as assuming extra-territorial jurisdiction by foreign producers unused to our governmental habit of suspicion. It is to prohibit and punish this practice of "dumping" that the act imposes a penalty, where duties are raised on appraisal, of one per cent for each one per cent by which the appraisal is raised.

Section 3, I, provides that the importing owner or consignee may "at the time when he shall make entry of such merchandise, but not after the invoice or the merchandise has come under the observation of the appraiser, make such addition in the entry to or such deduction from the cost or value given in the invoice . . . as in his opinion may raise or lower the same to the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise at the time of exportation to the United States." This is evidently intended to permit the importer to correct voluntarily any mistake or dishonesty in invoicing on the part of the consignor which he may discover before appraisal, but does not permit him to accept the revaluation where the value is raised by the appraiser and thus avoid penalizing however innocent the consignor and importer may be. To sum up, the consignor, in this respect as the agent of the importer, is absolutely required by the law to make the actual selling price the basis of the invoice, if the merchandise be of actual purchase, and as this is the actual market value and price to the importer, where there is no dishonesty, evasion or error, the importer cannot properly increase the valuation in his entry especially as he is absolutely ignorant of what the appraiser may see fit to do.

In the case recently heard before the General Appraiser on dutiable valuation of Everyman's Library, counsel for the importing publishers sought to test value by citing manufacturing cost of production plus reasonable profit. This seemed sound as a criterion in a considerable range of cases, but the objection of the Government's counsel to this line was sustained by Judge Fisher on the general ground upheld in other cases, that cost of production was not the immediate basis of market value. This is really a point of law on which notice of appeal to the courts was given. Since the hearing, the General Appraiser has modified his finding and accepted the price actually paid the English manufacturing publisher plus ten per cent plus eight per cent as a fair appraisal, and the appeal in that case becomes academic. We are not informed as to the grounds for the additional percentages. It is to be hoped that the point will in some other case be raised, so that when the price actually paid by the importers is questioned manufacturing costs abroad may be cited by the importer as well as by the Government in corroboration of actual price.

The market value of a book in the country of origin is really determined by two factors: the cost of duplication and the extent of the market on which the primary cost of production may be distributed. On a book of small possible sale, say 500 copies, the original cost must be distributed one-five-hundredth to each copy, the duplicating must be added, and then comes reasonable profit. Thus cost and profit make value and price. On an edition of 10,000 copies, the original cost is divided in one ten-thousandth for each copy, and when a second edition of 10,000 copies is printed, the original cost has been defrayed, and the plates are chargeable only as machinery is charged in cost of production, at cost of use, including depreciation. Thus the value or price of a book is determinable finally by the actual or potential size of the edition. This is why trade prices vary both in England and in America, by quantity discounts, and why there are market values instead of a single market value in the case of books. The value of a book that sells 500 copies is entirely different, from the sales point of view, from the value of a book that sells 10,000 or a 100,000 copies. Therefore, the publisher endeavors to induce his customers to enable him to market a large edition by offering them a discount greater and a price lower in proportion to the size of the order, and this rule applies not only to domestic wholesalers, like Simpkins, Smith and others in England, but to publishers of editions for the United States, Canada, Australia or elsewhere. If an English publisher plans an edition for sale to English readers of a thousand copies, and an American importing publisher places an order for another thousand copies, the market value of the book varies accordingly. Both purchases are made in the country of origin, whether for domestic or export use, and the market value and price to a purchaser who takes 25 copies, another who takes 100 copies, another who takes a thousand copies, are necessarily different. This important and decisive factor, the extent of the market, is reflected in trade custom by the varying discounts, which in the indicated cases would be normally from 25% to 50% off.

In the case of "joint publication," the American publisher usually joins with the English publisher in sharing the original cost and he pays also the duplicating cost plus a reasonable profit on both. In this instance there is no specific wholesale price and valuation can be based only upon actual price which in turn is based upon actual cost. Works of joint publication are usually those of high value and small circulation so that their publication may be impossible unless both markets can be joined.

If English publication only is made, cost and price are so high that only a few copies can be imported, a larger public is denied the book and the Government actually loses revenue.

In neither case do the Trade Unions gain, under the manufacturing clause of the Copyright Law or under Tariff prohibition, for American reproduction is impracticable.

This again illustrates why in determining market value in the country of origin, both factors must be taken into account, in verifying invoiced prices and market values. The Government seeks to no cost to impeach invoices, yet it denies to the importer the right to cite costs to confirm the invoice. The Government may assume that it cannot recognize price for export; but it cannot rightly refuse to recognize the fact that a quantity price in the market of origin, based on quantity, does determine value, without reference to the place of final sale. This value cannot be less than the cost of production with reasonable addition for profit; and in this sense cost of production may come into the discussion on the part of the Government as a limiting factor. In fact, the Government, if it suspected that invoice values were below cost of production, would instantly make that objection to the Appraisers. For like reason the extent of the market and the trade custom of basing prices on quantity orders, may fairly be pleaded by the importer, and should be recognized by the Government. Surely, it is not wise to make decisions not necessitated by the text of the law, which would hamstring the whole business of importing publishers with the ultimate result of limiting importation and increasing prices to readers everywhere.

Value and prices are, of course, differentiated by such circumstances as unfair competition, bargain sales, poor credit or long time; but in normal circumstances they bear a close relation to each other, and one serves as the criterion as much as the other. This commonsense rule in economics ought to be applied in the Government treatment of importing publishers.

It is of course the business of the local appraiser to apply the law and incidentally to interpret it and act within its provisions as he sees them. His interpretation and his valuations differ in each port, altho it is almost uniform practice to levy, supposedly in the interest of the Government, the highest duty and the largest fund. To correct him there is appeal to a General Appraiser and thence to the Board of Appraisers; but these also vary in the several ports and have the same trend. Only the central authorities at Washington can correct local discriminations and safeguard honest persons by uniform, just and liberal construction within the law. This the Secretary of the Treasury should rightly be expected to do and so important a matter as this should even in war time come to his attention. It may be the policy of the administration to limit book importation for war reasons, but surely it cannot afford to make or permit precedence now which will estop honest business with our Allies when peace comes.

THE argument made above is clinched by the facts adduced in respect to the Loeb Classical Series in letters from George Haven Putnam to the Secretary of the Treasury printed in this issue. It would be indeed the irony of fate should the contribution of a distinguished American scholar and man of wealth to the scholarship of the world, a gift equally generous in motive and in money, be denied to American scholars thru the narrow action of our own Government under an Administration committed to the decrease instead of increase of duties. We print also in this connection a further letter from Mr. Putnam to the British Comptroller General in respect to pressing problems of international copyright under war conditions. We take the opportunity to offer to Mr. Putnam felicitations and to the publishing trade and his country congratulations on the safe return to the home country, despite the dangers of the sea, of this representative American who hazarded a journey to the mother country that he might with his eloquence strengthen the common cause of the allied nations in the world war and with his long experience and practical common sense, help to find a solution to some of the international difficulties which have grown out of the war.

IMPORTATION AND COPYRIGHT PROBLEMS OF THE DAY

Letters From George Haven Putnam

July 26, 1918.

Editor of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY:

I left London on the fifteenth of July and up to that date I had not received from the Comptroller General report that any action had been taken in response to my application on behalf of the interests of certain American authors whose copyright protection for Great Britain was imperilled as a result of the British embargo on the importation of books. I thought it in order before leaving London to write again to the Comptroller General recalling to him the nature of the difficulty which was interfering with the rights to copyright protection that had been accorded to American authors under the international agreement, and asking that a report as to action might be sent to me in New York.

I am enclosing with this a copy of the letter to the Comptroller General.

Yours very truly,
G. H. PUTNAM.

July 29, 1918.

W. Temple Franks, Esq.,
Comptroller General,
The Patent Office,

25 Southampton Buildings, W. C.

My Dear Sir:

I had the opportunity of placing before you orally at the time of my interview in May, and later, under your instructions in a written statement, a report in regard to the serious interference that was being caused to the copyright interests of American authors and of certain British authors whose books were coming into print in America under the operations of the embargo which nearly two years back was placed upon the importation of books into Great Britain. The arrangement entered into in July, 1891, between Great Britain and the United States provided that American authors should be entitled to the protection of copyright in the British Kingdom and (in advance of the transfer of the control of copyright to the independent colonies) thruout the British Empire, in consideration of similar protection being secured, under the copyright law of the United States, for works originating in Great Britain.

There has been no change during the years of the war, or since 1891, in the copyright protection secured in the United States for works of British authors or for works originating in Great Britain.

As a result, however, of the embargo placed upon the importation into Great Britain of supplies of books printed in America, the American author is no longer in a position to secure the copyright protection in Great Britain to which he is entitled under the reciprocity arrangement which went into force in July, 1891. Prior to the British act which became law in 1912, the protection of copyright could be secured under what was called "technical publication." A copy of the book could be deposited at Stationers' Hall and at the British Museum, and a formal announcement was to be made by advertisement that the book had been published.

Under the provisions of the act of 1912, requirement was made for what was called a bona fide publication.

Publication in the full sense of the term, meeting the requirement of bona fide publication, cannot be provided for as long as the embargo act is in force.

I took the liberty of suggesting that the difficulty might be met by an Order in Council which should provide, that at least during the term of the war, the necessary copyright protection could be secured for books originating outside of Great Britain under a technical publication. A single copy of the book could be deposited in the British Museum and the title and the fact of the deposit being duly recorded, and an announcement could be made that the book had been formally "published."

If, under such Order in Council, the book could be properly protected, the author, the owner of the copyright, would be in a position at the close of the war to make actual publication in Great Britain and to secure the returns to which his labor had entitled him.

I suggested further that at least during the continuance of the war, the term of twelve days within which, under the statute of 1911, it was essential to make bona fide publication in Great Britain should be lengthened to thirty days or to sixty days.

I pointed out that American authors were entitled, under the reciprocity arrangement of 1891, to continue to secure this protection for their property in Great Britain.

I pointed out further that a number of English authors who in connection with the present manufacturing difficulties in Great Britain were not able to bring their books into print in Great Britain, were making immediate publication in the United States.

It was important for these authors to secure some immediate return for their labor, but they hoped that it would not be necessary for them to lose the possible future value of their British copyright. If technical publication could be made in Great Britain as above suggested, these authors of books originating in Great Britain, together with the American authors, could at the close of the war secure whatever property advantage belonged to their production.

I regret that it has not proved practicable to secure attention to this matter before the date of my return to the United States.

I hope that you may be able to report in the near future that the necessary consideration has been secured and that by means of an Order in Council, or in some other way, the difficulty has been met. Each month that passes must, of necessity, add to the number of the books the English copyright of which will, under present conditions, have been forfeited.

I am, with much respect,

Your obedient servant,

GEO. HAVEN PUTNAM.

July 12, 1918.

*The Hon. W. G. McAdoo,
Secretary of the Treasury,

My Dear Sir:

I am taking the liberty of troubling you, or the proper official in the Treasury Department, for an expression of opinion upon a question or rather an issue that has arisen between the Manager of our London Publishing House and Mr. Chance, who is here in London as a special Commissioner of the Treasurer. Mr. Chance has been making investigations in regard to the prices charged in the market of origin for editions or supplies of books originating on this side, which have been purchased by importing publishers like my own house for publication in the United States. His investigations have included an inquiry into the status of a classical series entitled The Loeb Library. We have, of course, been ready to place before Mr. Chance here, as we have placed before the appraisers department in New York, the invoices under which supplies of the Loeb Library come to G. P. Putnam's Sons in New York, which invoices represent the actual amounts paid by us for the books. We have also placed before Mr. Chance the figures at which smaller, but more or less similar, "wholesale" supplies of the volumes of the same series are sold by the English publishers, who are the manufacturers of the editions, to their correspondents in Toronto and in Melbourne. Mr. Chance has requested the publisher of the English issue of the series, Mr. Heinemann, to give him for the use of the Treasury, the figures at which single copies or little lots of the same books, are sold by the English publisher to his bookseller correspondents in England. Mr. Heinemann has taken the ground that the American Treasury authorities have no concern with the figures of his home business. He has placed before them the figures of the charges to Putnams for the books, which figures correspond of course with the invoices and with the reports that we had already submitted to Mr. Chance in London and to the Customs authorities in New York. Mr. Chance asks us to write to Heinemann requesting Heinemann to give him (Chance) the figures at which sales of these books are made by Heinemann in England. We have no objection to such figures coming to the Treasury, but it has not seemed to us in order to write to Mr. Heinemann, or to any other English merchant, requesting, as a favor to ourselves, that the records of their domestic business be placed at the disposal of the representatives of the United States Treasury.

If our Treasury has the right to secure these figures, it will, of course, do so, but we feel it to be an impertinence for us to make any request to English publishers that they should, as a favor to us, submit figures with which we have ourselves no direct concern. Mr. Chance takes the ground that in refusing to act as his agents in the matter, that is to say, to give him the written request, we are "obstructing the action of the Treasury" and are "withholding information."

We contend, on the other hand, that this is an erroneous description of the status. We are ready to place at the disposal of the authorities all the "information" that we have, and all information that concerns our own importing undertakings. According to our view, we ought not to be called upon to act as assistant agents of the Treasury for securing information which has to do with English conditions only and which is not connected with our own importations.

I am leaving shortly for America and expect to be again at my desk in New York, 2 West Forty-fifth Street, before the close of the month. You will understand that this inquiry has to do not with a single instance, but with the position taken by Mr. Chance, and probably by his associates, in regard to a long series of similar undertakings, and the precedent is, therefore, of importance.

I am, with much respect,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

GEO. HAVEN PUTNAM.

July 12th, 1918.

*The Hon. W. G. McAdoo,
Secretary, The Treasury,

My Dear Sir:

The Loeb Classical Library.

I am writing to request your attention for a question that has arisen in regard to the "dutiable value" of the supplies of the volumes in the above series which are being imported by G. P. Putnam's Sons for publication in regular course in the American market.

1. The matter at issue is by no means new, and has, in fact, been under consideration between the importing publishers and the Treasury Department for a term covering nearly thirty years. The claim, however, on the part of the Appraisers in New York that, under the provisions of the Tariff Act, there should be a readjustment (that is to say, a very substantial increase) in the dutiable value of the volumes of this particular series, is new.

2. The series has been in course of publication for nearly eight years, and a good many thousand volumes have been brought over into the States for the use of the scholars and students for whose interests the series has been prepared. The publication price of of the series has been based upon the actual cost of the books landed, duty paid, in New York, and until the present year no question had been raised by the authorities as to the correctness of this dutiable value.

3. This particular classical series is, I may explain, not a "commercial" publication; that is to say, so far from having been undertaken with any expectation of profit, it was planned with the full knowledge that the publication would involve a very material net deficiency, a deficiency to be met from year to year. Mr. Loeb, himself a great scholar and, fortunately for scholarship, a man of means, had decided to do what was in his power to be of service to the circles on both sides of the Atlantic representing higher scholarship. He has, therefore, appropriated sufficient funds for the compensation of editors and of contributors to this important series and for the outlays required for manufacturing the books. During the past three years these outlays have of necessity under war conditions, very materially increased, and this increase is adding largely to the net annual deficiency on the undertaking.

4. The Representatives of the Treasury on this side, acting as they report, in line with the position that has been taken or that as they state is to be taken, by the Appraisers in New York, contend that the duty upon these volumes should be paid, not on the basis of the invoices which represent the actual cost of the books in London, but upon an arbitrary "trade price" representing, as nearly as they may be able to ascertain, the price that is charged by the English publishers who are themselves the manufacturers of the books to their bookselling customers in England.

5. For a series of this special character, the sales thru the booksellers are, as the English publisher has explained to one of the special United States Commissioners in London, and as we had, of course, ourselves, understood, very small. A large portion of the sales are made directly by the publishers to the colleges, libraries and individual scholars. As the English publisher has explained to the U. S. Commissioner, the only really "wholesale quantities" that he is able to sell other than those placed in the hands of G. P.

Putnam's Sons for the United States, are those sold to a publishing house in Toronto (which handles the series for the Dominion) and to a publishing house in Melbourne (which has control of the series for Australia). The figures charged to the London representatives of the Toronto house and of the Melbourne house are the same as those at which supplies are charged to G. P. Putnam's Sons in New York and on which Putnams have been paying duty. They are also the same at which similar supplies were charged to the New York House of Macmillan & Co., who, during the first years of the publication had charge of the series for the United States.

6. If the United States may decide to make this substantial increase in the dutiable value and in the amount of duty to be paid that would be involved in basing this duty upon the price at which a dozen volumes are sold in London instead of that at which a thousand volumes are purchased for New York, the publication of the series for the United States will have to be brought to a close. It would not be practicable for the American publishers to make a selling price for the volumes which would meet the requirements of the scholars and students (largely an impecunious class) for whose needs the books had been prepared.

7. At the time of the enactment of the Underwood Tariff, Mr. Underwood took the ground in the statement connected with the provision covering books, that it was the intention of the framers of the act and of the Democratic Administration, to "lessen the burdens on literature." As I need hardly point out, if the present contention of the customs authorities be maintained, the cost of books of this character landed, duty paid, in the United States, will be so far increased that the selling price will put them out of the reach of a large proportion of the students to whom they are addressed; in fact, for many undertakings and, as said, for the series now in question, the importations would stop altogether.

8. As above indicated, the question, while now freshly brought up, is by no means new. I had the opportunity of presenting an argument in regard to it first before the Board of Appraisers in New York and later before Secretary McVeagh in Washington, during Mr. McKinley's administration. After the matter had been fully presented, Mr. McVeagh took the ground that, for books imported in editions, it was proper to fix a "dutiable value" which should be in line with that at which similar quantities of the books were sold in the market of origin. This seemed to him to be the commonsense interpretation of "value in the home market," and we were able to make clear to the Secretary that if any other interpretation were given to the wording of the statute, the importation of books in editions for the use of American readers must be very largely brought to an end.

9. Under this interpretation, the business of publishing books for several English-speaking markets under what is termed a "joint publishing arrangement" was being largely developed. Under such "joint publishing arrangement," the amounts paid for editorial service, for authorship, for maps, and for illustrations, are divided equally between the several markets in question, sometimes between the United States and Great Britain only, and sometimes under a division which includes in addition to Canada and Australia, one or more continental countries.

10. The division of the typesetting and printing (in the case for books for which American copyright is not to be secured) is divided in like manner between the English-speaking markets either by Great Britain or the United States alone, or these two markets, with the addition of Canada and Australia.

11. Under such joint publishing arrangement, the authors secure a return from all the groups of readers to whom the books can be of service; while readers, including the very important group of American readers, secure their copies at a very much lower price than is necessary when the entire plant cost (authorship, typesetting, etc.) has to be debited up against one edition, for our purposes, the American edition.

12. The publishing concerns, which, like my own house, have transatlantic interests, were making payment of duty on the supplies secured, the dutiable value covering, in addition to the manufacturing cost, paper, presswork, and, if the volumes were in covers, binding, and an equitable proportion of the typesetting and electrotyping.

13. In the past years, under such interpretation of the law, my own house has, for instance, often with the first initiative from New York, brought into publication works of importance for scholarship or for higher literature the editions of which have been equally divided between New York and London. The impression would cover, say, 2,000 copies, of which 1,000 would come to New York and the other 1,000 would be reserved for sale on this side.

14. Under any interpretation of the law, however, which called for a payment of duty on the 1,000 copies printed for New York on the basis of the sale of half a dozen copies to a retail dealer in London, such joint publishing undertakings become impossible, and there is a resulting loss to editors, authors, publishers and the book-buying public.

15. The Appraisers in New York have, from time to time, taken the ground that the interpretation of the term "value in the home market" must be made the same "for books as for other imported goods." I have, in all the preceding arguments had occasion to point out that for other classes of goods, it is possible to check the invoices of French or German or English manufacturers covering substantially similar quantities sold to customers on this side.

16. A French manufacturer of silk handkerchiefs, for instance, will sell 100 dozen of the handkerchiefs for export to New York at a wholesale manufacturing price, and the price charged to the New York importer will be substantially in line with that charged to a large buyer in Paris or in London purchasing a similar quantity. It has never been insisted that the dutiable value of the handkerchiefs should be the price at which a dozen handkerchiefs were sold from the counter of the retail dealer.

17. In like manner, the purchaser of 100 dozen knives from a Sheffield importer is quite willing to have the figures of his invoice to a New York purchaser checked by the figures of a similar supply sold by the same Sheffield manufacturer to a buyer in London or Liverpool.

18. The difficulty with books is that the English manufacturer does not have the opportunity of making sale to any other customer in quantities similar to those sold to the New York importers. The supplies nearest are, as said, those sold to Canada or Australia; and the New York importing publisher is quite prepared to admit the equity under the wording of the law of using the Australian or Canadian figures as a "comparison" or check for those constituting the dutiable value for his own invoices.

19. Secretary McVeagh admitted, in a decision that I have on file, that "authorship" as such was not subject to duty. I had pointed out to him that the term "authorship" does not find place in the list of 4,132 articles that make up our Tariff Schedule.

20. As an example of the fact that authorship was not, under the statute, subject to duty, I had cited the case of the importation of a manuscript. I have myself, from year to year, brought over in my trunk manuscripts for the preparation of which I had made payment in Oxford or in Cambridge. I have always shown such manuscripts at the time of landing to the Customs authorities, admitting that they were articles of value. There has, of course, however, never been any question of undertaking to collect duty on such a manuscript, altho it had involved an outlay of say, from £100 to £200. If the authorship is not dutiable when separated in the form of a manuscript, it is difficult to understand the justice of insisting upon having it constitute a factor in making up the dutiable value of 1,000 copies of the book imported in sheets.

I hope very much that, after due consideration your Treasury Department will decline to enforce an interpretation of the law which, in place of carrying out the intention of Senator Underwood and his associate, the framers of the present Tariff act, of "lessening the burdens upon literature," will bring about a very serious increase in the cost of books of the highest importance for the intellectual life of our country, an increase so serious that, as explained, it must, in a number of cases, bring to a close transatlantic publishing undertakings, or the publication of important works under a joint publishing arrangement. The larger number of American buyers will be unable to secure the books at all, and the smaller number will have to pay the very much higher price required for the importation of single copies thru retail dealers.

The matter is one of vital importance not only for authors and publishers but for the literary interests and the intellectual life of our country.

I should esteem it a privilege to be afforded an opportunity at some convenient time of submitting my statement in person.

Our Administration has now at its head a

President who is one of the greatest thinkers of the world, who is a man of scholarship and of high literary ideals. I do not believe that such a President, who has associated with him the present Secretary of the Treasury, will be prepared, when the matter is thoroly understood, to enforce, in connection with the importation of books, a policy that will compare so unfavorably with the policy and the practice of its Republican protectionist predecessors.

I am, with much respect,

Your obedient servant,

(Signed)

G. H. PUTNAM.

BASTILE DAY CELEBRATED BY THE PATRIOTIC SERVICE LEAGUE OF CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS

A MEETING of the Patriotic Service League of Charles Scribner's Sons was held at five o'clock on Monday, July 15th, in honor of Bastile Day. Mr. F. L. Titsworth, the president, presided. He spoke of the work the Scribner's League had done in Thrift Stamp pledges and also of the work outlined by special committees which had been appointed. Seven standing committees consisting of Membership, Publicity and Extension, Fellowship, Liberty Loan and Thrift Stamp, Red Cross, Program and Speakers, and Service Flag Committees, were appointed to carry out the work of the League.

The Four-Minute quartette was introduced first. They sang several patriotic songs, and two verses of "America," in which all joined. Lieutenant S. S. Nicholas of the Australian Light Horse Cavalry delivered a brief but most pleasing address on the need of reading matter for the men in the trenches. A member of the French High Commission, M. Knecht, was also introduced. He confirmed Lieutenant Nicholas's request for the need of all sorts of reading matter and spoke particularly of the close affiliation of France and America in the need of individual help in stopping German propaganda. On motion a vote of thanks was given to both Lieutenant Nicholas and M. Knecht and also to the Four-Minute Quartette, and as there was no further business, upon motion, the meeting adjourned.

The employees of Charles Scribner's Sons have formed a Patriotic Service League to protect, conserve and strengthen in every possible way patriotism and loyalty to our country: to aid the United States Government in the prosecution of the war by patriotic service in whatever way called upon; and to promote a spirit of fellowship among all the employees. Anyone connected with Charles Scribner's Sons, who subscribes to the objects of the League is eligible to membership. The Constitution drawn up by the Committee appointed and unanimously adopted by all of the members, called for the following officers:

Honorary Vice-President, Mrs. Arthur H. Scribner; President, Mr. F. L. Titsworth; Vice-Presidents, Mr. S. W. Marvin, Mr. Robert Bridges, Mr. E. T. S. Lord; Secretary-Treasurer, Miss Helen V. Fisler; and an Executive Committee composed of one man and one woman from each of the eleven departments of the house.

The first general meeting of the League was held on Thrift Stamp Day, June 28th, when 100 per cent. of the members signed pledge cards to buy thrift and war savings stamps regularly either by the week or month. The second meeting was held on Bastile Day.

THE UNCONQUERABLE SPIRIT

Some while ago a young man left Houghton Mifflin Co. for active service with the American Expeditionary Forces in France. Since that time he has received honorable mention for bravery. Recently he was severely wounded. Sargeant Dickerson's letter to Mr. Houghton explaining the encounter follows:

Dear Sir:

No doubt you have heard of my being injured. God only knows how many of them I got first, but according to the higher ups I guess I got one for everyone in the shop.

It was an awful morning for Mr. Boche. He started a barrage and immediately we opened up with the Stokes Motor and the shells were landing right between the second and third waves. They were storm troops or picked troops. They have not been heard of since. According to the reports of some of the boys they travel in autos from one place to another and have women with them. They are pretty nearly always drunk and this makes them very daring. Single handed he's a coward, but when they come in bunches then prepare for a scrap.

I am away down in S. France now and the hospital used to be a hotel. Am still in bed but expect to be able to get up in three weeks or so.

Sincerely yours,

J. A. DICKERMAN.

AMONG THE PUBLISHERS

IT IS NOT OFTEN that a reviewer turns aside and emphasizes the public's indebtedness to a publisher which makes the more interesting Francis Hackett's mention of Moffat, Yard & Co., in the New Republic's review of "Totem and Taboo," by Sigmund Freud:

"Luckily, the publishers in America have understood the genuine interest in psychoanalysis and analytic psychology, and there is now a quite extensive literature in English for the equipment of any student. The firm of Moffat, Yard & Company has done particularly handsome service in this respect. By providing translations as well as by favoring original American contributions, this firm has acquired an excellent list of psychological studies. Dr. Alfred Adler's Neurotic Constitution, Dr. Jung's Analytic Psychology and his Psychology of the Unconscious, Freud's Delusion and Dream, Dr. Pfister's The Psychoanalytic Method, Dr. Isador Coriat's useful little What is Psychoanalysis? and Dr. Frink's Morbid Fears and Compulsions—these are by no means all of their publications in this branch of research and exposition. The material is now available in English for much more than a haphazard investigation of 'the unconscious.' It is a difficult work for any publisher to have undertaken, and a most creditable one, and the way is prepared for introducing general arterial drainage into the mind of man."

THE NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY has barred Arnold Bennett's "Pretty Lady" from its shelves. In commenting on this fact the New York Herald quoted librarians:

"The book is quite all right, I suppose, in a sense. If one cares to read that sort—er. Of course, the book might be considered—er well. Briefly, it is the sort of book which we do not care to—er. At any rate—we have none of them left."

THE THORO NATIONAL stock-taking of American ideals and principles, extends also to education which receives attention in "The Evolution of a Democratic School System" by Professor C. H. Judd of Chicago University. (Houghton Mifflin.)

OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS has an English government order for nearly 3,000,000 copies of books and pamphlets, among which are the Army Prayer Book and the Roman Catholic Prayer Book.

H. S. Milford, sending the information given above, says:

"I write on Independence Day, and the two flags float proudly—or would float if there were enough breeze in Paternoster Row—from an upper window. We send you our greetings."

GEORGE CREEL's recommendation accompanies notices regarding Mrs. Blatch's "Mobilizing Women Power" (Woman's Press). Theodore Roosevelt wrote the foreword.

THE VALUE OF a good name is shown in "Betty Wales," the name used by the Penn Publishing Co. for their college stories. The name was adopted from them by a garment manufacturer with imagination and he now devotes all his business to making "Betty Wales" dresses. In the book business we cannot say "What's in a name?" for truly everything is in the name and the title.

A GOOD EXAMPLE for publishers to follow is that set by Alfred A. Knopf in his advertising to the booksellers. Mr. Knopf, after mentioning his new titles, adds the following postscript:

"Book prices are rising and are going to go a good deal higher. It would help if you'd explain to your customers that paper has advanced about 110 per cent. since 1916; binding has advanced 55 per cent. since December, 1917; printing has advanced over 25 per cent. since December, 1917; that even if novels come to be published at $2.00 net, the purchaser will not be paying as great an increase over pre-war prices as the publisher now pays to his manufacturer."

BONI & LIVERIGHT make the announcement that Mr. Albert Boni, who has served as treasurer of their company for the past year is no longer connected with the firm in any way. The officers of the company remain unchanged as follows: Horace B. Liveright, President; Thomas Seltzer, Vice-president; William S. Bell, Assistant Treasurer; Julian Mossman, Secretary and Sales Manager. Mr. Seltzer, who has contributed many introductions to the volumes in the Modern Library continues to act as Editor to this series.

"GUYNEMER, THE ACE of Aces," is the story of the foremost aviator of the world war written by his friend, Jacques Mortane, editor of La Guerre Aérienne (Moffat, Yard).

THE LATEST CONTRIBUTION to the literature about the Kaiser is "The Kaiser As I Know Him," by Dr. Arthur M. Davis, for fourteen years the Kaiser's personal dentist in Berlin. (Harper.)

THE DETERMINATION OF the country that war experiences shall not unfit men for peace, shows in the literature it is inspiring. A recent book on this subject is "How a Soldier May Succeed After the War," by Russell H. Conwell. It points out by reading in camp a man may fit himself for a trade or profession (Harper).

A busy Y. M. C. A. man has found a way out for those of us who are far too busy this summer to take a vacation. "I believe that while many men cannot find time to get away for a vacation, they can take some time to read about it," he writes to Houghton Mifflin Company, and in the same letter he asks for Mary Roberts Rhinehart's story of her camping trip in the Rockies, "Tenting Tonight." This is an excellent idea, and quite typical of the "Y's" resourcefulness.

MAKING GOOD IN WARTIME

Learn Bookselling

Miss Bessie Graham's first series of lessons on bookselling which appeared in the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY during the past winter and spring brought a large number of special subscribers for the course from booksellers' clerks and library assistants. The outlook for the second course scheduled to begin with the first issue of September is most promising as evidenced in the fact that the greater number of these students have already renewed for the new series. The recognized value of a personal copy of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY for the bookstore clerk is emphasized in several appreciative letters received with renewal orders. One of these students, connected with a prosperous middle western bookshop, writes, "I think the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is so very helpful that I would not care to try to do without its weekly visits." While one copy is sufficient in many small shops, there is no doubt about the value of a duplicate copy for each person in charge of a department in all larger concerns.

"Courtesy is a business principle." This is one of those half truths, of which like "Honesty is the best policy"—we have come to be ashamed. Honesty is more than a policy, so should courtesy be. Yet there are still both dishonest and discourteous people, and emphasis must still be placed on courtesy.

Courtesy is only the last expression of service, which is the keynote of modern business. Courtesy is usually, but not always extended to customers, self-interest forcing the most boorish to be polite. But courtesy may be extended with the same result to employees, to travelers, to all those whom we meet during the day's work.

Libraries for Hotels

The famous Poland Spring Hotel advertising in the New York papers holds forth these inducements to patrons—spring water, a hotel library of 7000 volumes, and golf. Golf is mentioned after the library. Other hotel proprietors would appreciate this suggestion.

Bank-Books Build Character

Before you are taken into partnership and given a chance to spend the funds of the firm, you must give evidence that you know how to care for your own. The worthless, the shiftless, the insincere, the always needy, never get ahead—and at the bank they are unknown. Even a small bank account makes an impress on your character.

—Elbert Hubbard.

In co-operation with the Library War Service of the American Library Association, the "Negro Books for Negro Soldiers' Movement" is raising a fund of $90,592 to establish 4,000 libraries of 21 books each, for the 100,000 negroes in the army and navy.

Twenty-one books, all by negro authors, have been chosen. Each set costs $22.50, and as it is impossible to secure these books by soliciting second-hand copies, it will be necessary to purchase every volume.

Commending the movement, Mrs. Booker T. Washington has written as follows:

"We believe, thoroly, in giving to the Negro men who have gone into the army, the life and work of the best in the race, so that adoration and hero worship will not all be for that which is white; too much emphasis cannot be put upon this subject." The books:

"Up from Slavery," Booker T. Washington, (Doubleday) (Burt).

"The Negro in Art and Literature," Benj. Brawley, (Duffield).

"John Brown," W. E. B. DuBois, (Jacobs).

"The Haitian Revolution," T. G. Steward, (Crowell).

"Poems by Paul Lawrence Dunbar," (Dodd).

"Aftermath of Slavery," W. Sinclair, (Small).

"The Black Man's Burden," William H. Holtzclaw, (Neale).

"The New Negro," W. Pickens, (Neale).

"The American Cavalryman," Henry F. Downing, (Neale).

"Fifty Years and Other Poems," James Weldon Johnson, (Cornhill Co.).

"A Black and White Tangle," Anonymous,

"Out of the House of Bondage," Kelly Miller, (Neale).

"Negro Culture in West Africa," George W. Ellis, (Neale).

"A Tribute for the Negro Soldier," J. W. Bruce, (Bruce & Franklin).

"Race Adjustment," Kelly Miller, (Neale).

"The Facts of Reconstruction," John R. Lynch, (Neale).

"Souls of Black Folk," W. E. B. DuBois, (McClurg).

"Prince Hall and His Followers," George W. Crawford.

"History of Negro Soldiers in Spanish-American War," E. A. Johnson, (E. A. Johnson).

"The Negro," W. E. B. DuBois.

"The Swords of Chance," Henry F. Downing.

DANGEROUS PROPAGANDA

"A Disastrous Proposal" heads the recent card sent out by Charles E. Butler of the American Booksellers' Association, in which he suggests to every bookseller to take heed of the New Jersey State Council of Defense's recent recommendation, as follows:

"That Christmas giving which involves the purchase of gifts should be discouraged as relieving to that extent the present heavy burden placed on labor, transportation, and other resources of the Nation." . . . To be supplanted by cards and letters only.

Booksellers and publishers should not sit calmly by and permit such an impossible suggestion as the abolition of Christmas giving to gain headway.

Mr. Butler has sent the following letter to the editors of all daily newspapers in New York City:

"Dear Sir:

"The propaganda started by the Council of National Defense to persuade the public against Christmas buying and limiting same simply to a card or letter, will be disastrous to the interests of the country. I enclose herewith a card explaining the situation, and asking your support against this propaganda. This card is being sent to every bookseller in the United States.

"In calling your attention to this, I do so feeling that no better service can be done the Government or the public by your able paper than by inaugurating a campaign therein against this propaganda of the Council of National Defense. I think it is needless to call your attention to the full scope of this move. You are at liberty to use part or whole of this card if you so desire."

CHARLES E. BUTLER,
President American Booksellers
Association.

MACY GAINS POINT ON VICTOR

R. H. Macy & Co. won a point, on July 22, in the fight against the Victor Talking Machine Company and its agents for triple damages amounting to $570,000 for alleged violation of the Sherman law in seeking to limit the supply and to fix the prices of its talking machines and records. In its answer to the suit the Victor Company asked that the action be dismissed because the Clayton act, which it is alleged was also violated, was unconstitutional by reason of exceptions in favor of horticultural, agricultural, and labor organizations, and that the provisions of the law said to be violated could not become effective until after the Federal Trade Commission had exercised its jurisdiction.

The plaintiff demurred to the answer, and Federal Judge Knox sustained the demurrer in a long opinion in which he said that the Federal Trade Commission only served as an instrumentality for doing justice to business where the remedy could not be applied by the courts.

GOVERNMENT BAN ON "MEN IN WAR"

The Government has sent out the following notice to all booksellers:

Many book dealers are carrying copies of "Men in War" by Andreas Latzko. Some are in French, with the title "Hommes Dans La Guerre." This book has been barred from the mails by the Postal authorities; and in the opinion of this department it is highly undesirable from a military standpoint. Book sellers are requested not to display it or to offer it for sale.

M. CHURCHILL,
Colonel, General Staff,
Chief, Military Intelligence Branch,
Executive Division.

A communication on this same subject will be found in this issue of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY. It is specially interesting to note that it is signed by RUPERT HUGHES.

MUST ORDER BOOKS FROM PUBLISHERS

Books and periodicals can be sent to American prisoners of war in Germany only when they are ordered through the publishers and are dispatched from the offices of publishers, the War Department announces. This ruling by the military censorship was made because old books form a convenient method of secret communication and require extraordinary scrutiny by the censorship forces.

Local booksellers should take the order, forward it to the publisher and have the book sent direct by the publisher. In this way the bookseller will not lose business and the publisher will be saved needless correspondence. The customer also will save time and energy.

STOP THIEF!

A box of second-hand books was stolen from the Hoboken branch of the American Library Association, among them a set of Larned's Ready Reference. Booksellers to whom the books may be offered are asked to communicate with Mr. Dickinson of the Hoboken branch.

PERSONAL NOTES

MR. TEMPLE SCOTT announces that he has resigned the position he has held for so many years with Brentano's as their literary adviser and manager of their publications' department. He is about to go into business as a Literary Agent and Publishers' Advertising Expert, and will announce later his business location. All communications for the present should be sent to him to 610 West 152nd Street, New York City.

WITH THE BRITISH PUBLISHERS IN WAR TIME

(Written exclusively for the Publishers' Weekly.)

BY VAL FISHER (Ministry of Information, London, England.)

You asked me what is happening in publishing circles in Great Britain. Really, there is so much to say that it is almost difficult for me to tell you as it is for you to visualize the field over the 3,000 miles which separate you.

Take the distributing trade for instance, Messrs. W. H. Smith & Son (who own over a thousand book stalls on the present railway stations, hundreds of book-shops in leading towns, and who are very large printers), have released for the fighting forces 6,000 of their employees—92 per cent. of the eligible staff. In normal times they might have replaced many of these by girls or women, but over 5,000,000 British women are now engaged solely on work of national importance. In spite of this, this one house has not only carried on its normal business, but it has distributed over 100,000,000 copies of various pieces of propaganda literature; it has thru its book stalls and shops sold over $15,000,000 of War Savings Certificates, and yet tho they are a sadly depleted and hard worked staff, they collect funds among themselves for the purchase of motor ambulances and personal comforts for the Allied fighting forces.

On the publishing side, similar stories are to be told; from the offices of the Times a comparatively small staff, 547 men enlisted; from the Amalgamated Press (the leading publishing house, weekly and monthly papers), 1,600 have gone; Messrs. Ed. Hulton & Co., the largest newspaper publishers in Britain have released 1,200 men for service; Messrs. Odham, publishers of John Bull and many other popular weeklies, provided 500 fighting men out of total staff of 1,400, both sexes. If you realize that every third male of any age in the British Isles (6,500,000 out of 20,000,000) is now in the army or navy, you can understand the conditions of the labor market.

As to material, news print which formerly cost less than 2c. a pound, now costs up to 21c. a pound and less than a quarter of the peace time's supply is now available. Better quality papers have risen more in proportion. Printing costs are up over 150 per cent, and yet the business is in a far better condition than anyone would have predicted at the end of four years' war. So far as the general public is concerned, the main difficulties are that their papers and magazines are of course much less in size and higher in price, and their books are printed on cheaper quality of paper and cost more money. By abolishing returns, by encouraging careful buying, publishers generally have effected such economies which enable them to still carry on at a profit. Notwithstanding the serious blows dealt to their trade, they have never given way to panic. As a body they have proved their loyalty by accepting every restriction placed upon them by re-arranging their business to suit the new conditions, and they are ready to make still further sacrifices if necessary.

VIERECK ADMITS CHARGES

George Sylvester Viereck, publisher of Viereck's Weekly, and formerly editor of the Fatherland, which was barred from the mails because of its pro-German views, has admitted that he received approximately $100,000 from Count Bernstorff, Dr. Constantin Theodor Dumba, and others, for disseminating propaganda in the form of pamphlets and books.

Ninety thousand copies of the "Truth About Germany," to print which cost $2,315.

One hundred thousand copies of the German "White Book," to print which cost $2,274.

Another hundred thousand copies each of "Germany's Just Cause," to print which cost $2,425; "Germany and the War," to print which cost $2,250, and "Germany's Hour of Destiny," to print which cost $4,986.

One hundred and eighty thousand copies of "The Case of Belgium," to print which cost $8,100, and eighty thousand copies of "Current Misconceptions About the War," to print which cost $1,925.

Among the long list of books which it was said were published here on direct order from Berlin was one alleged to have been brought here on the submarine Deutschland. It was entitled "The Vampire of the Continent" and was written by Count Ernst von Reventlow, the German naval expert and chief editorial writer of the Tages Zeitung.

Another book, "Behind the Scenes of Warring Germany," was written by Edward Lyell Fox, an American newspaper correspondent.

Other works listed by Mr. Lewis' investigators were:

"What Germany Wants," by Dr. Edmund von Mach, formerly instructor at Harvard; "Central Europe," by Friederich Nauman, a member of the Reichstag; "Secrets of German Progress," by Frank Koester; "The Neutrality of Belgium," by Dr. Carl A. Fuehr, who was said also to have been a contributor to Viereck's publication fund; "Zeppelins Over England," by a writer styling himself "Von," and "The Lusitania Case," by C. L. Droste.

On charges of seeking to create public opinion favorable to Germany and against the cause of the Allies, thru his published writings, Viereck was expelled from membership in the Authors' League of America.

PAPER

Ten Per Cent Bonus Not Part of Paper Workers' Award

Representatives of the International Paper Company and the paper mill workers' union were called before the board to explain their differences which resulted in the closing down of ten mills and a consequent curtailment of about 75 per cent. in the production of news print paper. Both sides stated that inability of their committees to agree on the working out of the award presented the greatest difficulty, and they joined in the request for an interpretation.

The controversy was referred by the War Labor Board to a section composed of C. A. Crocker and T. M. Guerin. It was commended that the section interpret the recent award of the Board, disagreement over the application of which led to the strike.

Authority also was given the section to reopen the case and hold further hearings if that was deemed necessary but rehearing will not be granted until all the men on strike return to work.

Mr. Crocker and Mr. Guerin subsequently ruled that paper mill workers are not entitled to the ten per cent. bonus allowed by the International Paper Company before the War Labor Board's wage award became effective, "unless the employers desire to do it as a voluntary act, as was done prior to this dispute arising."

The employers, it was held, are morally bound to pay the bonus for May and June because the notice originally granting it said the bonus would continue until the men were informed of the discontinuance. It was also held that the shortening of the work day from nine to eight hours was not to permit any reduction in wages.

Newspaper Restrictions

The committee on conservation of news print paper appointed by the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, responding to the call of the chairman of the pulp and paper section of the War Industries Board, Thomas E. Donnelly, for conference representing the adoption of measures looking to the reduction of the consumption of paper, met at the office of the War Industries Board. Mr. Donnelly outlined to the publishers the necessity for radical reduction in the use of paper of all kinds, and asked them to formulate for this information certain definite recommendations for the accomplishment of that purpose by methods which would be effective and at the same time be fair and possible from the point of view of the newspaper publishers.

The committee made recommendations based on the following principles:

1. The abolition of all waste, including "returns," in accordance with the suggestions already made to the chairman of the pulp and paper section of the War Industries Board and which have now been made mandatory by the board.

2. The retail price of 2 cents or more for all daily newspapers.

3. Restrictions on the reading matter space in daily and Sunday editions proportionate to the necessities of tonnage to be saved, and recognizing as nearly as possible the relative reading space needs of the papers as indicated by the present use of space.

In connection with the second principle stated the following resolution was adopted: "It is the judgment of the committee that to avoid unfair competition and to make practicable the reduction of the news print tonnage desired it is necessary to fix their minimum retail prices for daily papers at two cents."

The recommendation in the application for the third principle is as follows:

"Reduction on all reading space up to fifty columns 5 per cent.

"Reduction on additional space over fifty columns and not over seventy columns 15 per cent.

"Reduction on additional space over 70 columns, and not over 90 columns, 30 per cent.

"Reduction on all additional space over 90 columns 50 per cent.

"The reductions to be based on the daily monthly average of each paper for the six months ended June 30, 1918."

Recommendation as to the reduction of the reading space in Sunday papers is as follows:

"Up to 150 columns, reduction 10 per cent.; next 50 to 200 columns, reduction 20 per cent.; next 50 to 250 columns, reduction 30 per cent.; next 50 up to 300 columns, reduction 40 per cent.; next 50 up to 350 columns, reduction 50 per cent.

"Next 50 to 400 columns and over, reduction 60 per cent.

"It is suggested that these reductions be effective for daily papers August 5, 1918, and for Sunday papers September 1, 1918.

Mr. Donnelly and his assistants have taken the publishers' recommendations under advisement.

News Print Conditions Improve

Marked improvement in news print paper conditions, but little change in the consumption of book paper, were reported by the Federal Trade Commission. The attention of newspaper publishers again was called to the conservation order by the War Industries Board, recently made public, which the commission estimates will lower paper consumption at least 5 per cent.

There was a decrease in the percentage of returns and free copies of publications using both news print and book paper in June. Some important daily and Sunday newspapers still show high returns, one of 25 per cent. and another 18 per cent. Monthly magazines also had excessive returns, being as high as 40 per cent., while two weeklies had 20 per cent. of returns.

A NEEDED REPRINT

BY MARY MOWBRAY-CLARKE of the Sunwise Turn, N. Y. C.

Most of us booksellers have had occasional calls for that quaintly entitled book by William Dunlap, first published in 1834 and long out of print, "The Arts of Design in the United States." Now comes to us from the press of C. E. Goodspeed & Co. of Boston, in three handsome volumes, a reprint that is for collector's purposes of greater value than the original. Dunlap himself hoped that sometime additions and corrections to his work would be made and now in consultation with a noteworthy group of special students in the field of early American art this has been well done without losing the flavor of the author's enthusiastic work.

Booksellers have constantly to remind people that saving for war by neglecting the arts of peace is poor policy in a world that must face reconstruction with the most active need for the arts that the world has had since the Persians destroyed Athens. Portraiture after the war, as well as architecture, will necessarily come into its own and even with our present day technical mastery it is to be seen whether or not we shall in America be able to produce as many men with the genuine sense of what is truly pictorial that most of these century-old painters had. This book, printed when it was, just when the first generation of founders of the Republic had lived, bears a relation to them that is of special value now when we approach a still greater period of creative energy and it is good to look at these presentments of our dead forefathers and realize the high average of character among them that stimulated to such good results artists whose life stories, told so well by Dunlap, showed often only very slight opportunities for art training. The reproductions in this reprint greatly outnumber those in the earlier edition and are made by permission from the best public and private collections.

POSTAL NOTES

Postal Insurance Rates Increased

The rates for parcel post or unregistered mail insurance are to be advanced on September 1. The Postal Insurance Underwriters' Conference has voted to establish a new basis of rates to conform to the increased costs due to war conditions, and have agreed that on and after September 1 on all policies issued the new scale of rates must be applied in attaching coupons to make the insurance effective. The new rates are in the multiples of five cents, and former limits of $10, $37.50 and $75 have been abolished, thus dispensing with the necessity for issuing 2½ cent coupons. All postal insurance books issued after September 1 will be only those containing five cent coupons. The new rates for postal insurance effective September 1 will be as follows:

Unregistered Mail or Parcel Post—$25.00 or less, certificates to the value of 5 cents; $50.00 or less, 10 cents; $100.00 or less, 25 cents.

Registered Mail or Government Insured Parcel Post—$50.00 or less, certificates to the value of 5 cents; $150.00 or less, 10 cents; $250.00 or less, 25 cents.

Air Mail Plans Larger Service

Captain B. B. Lipsner, the new supervisor of the air mail route from Washington to New York, visited the Belmont Park station recently and conferred with H. L. Hartung, superintendent of the station, regarding the service.

Captain Lipsner resigned his commission in the army to become supervisor of the air mail route and to develop the service on lines similar to those of the railway mail service.

COMMUNICATIONS

War Department.
Office of the Chief of Staff.
Washington, July 29, 1918.

Editor, PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY,

Dear Sir:

It has come to our notice that a number of book dealers are selling English copies of Andreas Latzko's "Men in War," and French copies under the name of "Hommes Dans La Guerre." This publication has been barred from the mails by the Postal authorities, and is considered highly undesirable from a military standpoint. We realize, of course, that if the dealers knew how this department regarded this book, they would refuse to carry it. Will you help us by printing the appended notice?

Frequently the Postal authorities, at our request, bar from the mails pamphlets and books which would be injurious to the morale of our armies, or detrimental to the proper conduct of the war. It would be of great assistance to us if we could send you announcements from time to time so that you could publish them and thus get the information before the book dealers of the country.

Very truly yours,

M. CHURCHILL,
Colonel, General Staff,
Chief, Military Intelligence Branch,
Executive Division.

By: R. HUGHES,
Captain, U. S. N. A.

OBITUARY NOTES

HENRY SHALER WILLIAMS of Ithaca, N. Y., died at Havana, July 31, 1918, of pleurisy. He was 71 years old. Professor Williams was well known as a geologist. His research work in Cuba resulted in the development of oil fields in the island. Since 1912 he had been Emeritus Professor of Geology at Cornell University. Among his works were "A Geological Biology," "Correlation Papers, Devonian and Carboniferous," "On the Theory of Organic Variation;" also many papers on Devonian geology and paleontology.

CHARLES HENRY HART, art critic and historian, died July 29, 1918, in his home in New York City, aged 71 years. He was the author of the articles on Philadelphia which appeared in the "Encyclopædia Britannica" in 1885 and 1903, "Bibliographia Lincolniana," "Memoir of W. H. Prescott," "Life Portraits of Great Americans," "Portraits of Washington," "Biography of Robert Morris," "Turner, the Dream Painter," "Browere's Life Masks of Great Americans," "Gilbert Stuart's Portraits of Women," "Hints on Portraits and How to Catalogue Them," "Abraham Lincoln's Place in History," "Catalogue of Engraved Portraits of Washington." He selected and edited, with introduction and notes, 200 illustrations for Elson's "History of the United States," 100 portraits for "The American Woman," by Ida M. Tarbell.

PERIODICAL NOTES

POSTMASTER PATTEN, at New York, has barred the August number of Pearson's Magazine from the mails because a story written by Guido Bruno was not signed by him in his own name. Allan W. Ricker, president of the company, announced that there would be no September number.

Court proceedings were begun July 30 in which several allegations of fraud are made against Mr. Ricker and others in connection with oil property promotion.

Frank Harris, editor of the magazine and vice-president of the corporation publishing it, filed a petition asking that a receiver be appointed for the company, demanded an accounting of the company's assets.

Advertising copy should reach us Tuesday noon—earlier if proof is desired out-of-town. Forms close Thursday night.

Under the headings of "BOOKS WANTED" and "BOOKS FOR SALE" book-trade subscribers are given under their own names five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertising for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding one hundred lines a year, a maximum of fifty lines under "Books Wanted" and fifty lines under "Books for Sale," and if over five lines are sent for either department in only one issue, or fifty lines for each department within the calendar year, the excess is at ten cents a line. Bills for this service will be rendered monthly. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "HELP WANTED" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 15 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in JULY, 1918

This Reference List includes and classifies all books entered in the annotated Weekly Record during the past month, together with additional titles not therein listed, covering law and medicine, many government documents, university publications, pamphlets, and books of limited character. All works are here entered under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in CAPS and SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics. Under subject entries asterisks (*) designate books previously entered in the Weekly Record, in most cases with descriptive annotation.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in caps, Q, O, D, etc.; for books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire published output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i. e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

HOME FIRES IN FRANCE

By DOROTHY CANFIELD

Author of "The Bent Twig," etc.

The finest work of fiction—if fiction it can be called—produced from an American by the war is from our justly distinguished novelist, Dorothy Canfield. This is about to appear, for I have read the whole thing in proof. Dorothy Canfield, whose husband is at the front, went with him to France a year before America entered the war, her work being among the blind survivors of the fight. Her absolute command of French and her womanly qualities make her almost an ideal helper. These wonderful stories, written while her little daughter was convalescing from a serious illness, are an attempt to make Americans understand the French people. They are also intended to help Americans in America to understand Americans in France. Although she does not say so, they are still further intended to make Frenchmen understand this latter class. I call all three attempts successful, and I await with confidence the confirmation of this judgment both by critics and public when the book shall have appeared.

WILLIAM LYON PHELPS

New York Tribune, July 28, 1918.

Publication date Sept. 26th, but we are printing a large first edition now, and can soon start shipments to avoid the Fall congestion. 320 Pages. $1.35 net.
